

Preventing Terrorism

Understanding the Role of Women

Perpetrators

Preventers

Protectors

A Symposium By

Initiatives For Women In Need (IWIN)

Supported By Australian Security Research Centre, Fair Canberra

"Involving women in fighting terrorism isn't a "women's issue", - it's a security issue."
(James Howcroft from George C. Marshall Center, USA, May 2017)

Guest Speakers

Jacinta Carroll, National Security College, ANU

Anooshe Mushtaq, Adviser, Preventing Violent Extremism

Sari Sutton, National Security College, ANU

Date:

Saturday 16 September 2017

11:30am – 2:30pm

Venue:

Function Hall,
Theo Notaras Multicultural Centre,
180 London Circuit, Canberra City

Light Lunch will be served
RSVP please

Why this symposium

- Terrorism poses a grave threat to our future generations. Recent attacks in UK, France, Afghanistan, Pakistan and many more show that terrorism is on the rise.
- United Nation has stressed the importance of women's equal and full participation as active agents in peace and security.
- This highly interactive day including a Panel Discussion with Experts offers time to network, partner and learn about the importance of women's role in cyber, countering terrorism and preventing extremism.
- This is a unique opportunity for women interested in national security to come together to learn, grow and explore.

Please join us for the Prevent Terrorism Symposium

You will hear presentations by speakers from diverse backgrounds who share their work and expert views on women's unique role in preventing terrorism

Write to us: iwinact@gmail.com

know us: www.iwinact.org

Call us: 0432 261 541